

Bern, 1.6.2022

Institute of Psychology, Department of Work and Organizational Psychology (Prof. Hirschi)

Doctoral Researcher in Work and Organizational Psychology

Responsibilities

- Collaboration in research projects on career development over the life span
- Writing a doctoral thesis
- Scientific tasks for the implementation of projects (e.g., literature research, data collection, data analysis)
- Publication activity in peer-reviewed journals and other outlets
- Lecture activity at national and international congresses
- Support in the supervision of student qualification theses
- Teaching activities in work and organizational psychology
- Cooperation in practical projects

We offer

- An attractive research environment in a strong research team
- Pleasant and well-equipped working environment
- Flexible working hours and location
- Close supervision during the preparation of a doctoral thesis
- Opportunity to participate in the general or structured doctoral program of the Institute of Psychology
- National/international research as well as practice contacts

Requirements

- Master's degree in psychology, preferably in work and organizational psychology or a closely related field
- Strong research interest, especially in the topic of career development
- Sound knowledge of quantitative empirical methods and statistics (including R / MPlus)
- Excellent command of written and spoken German and English
- High level of commitment, efficiency, flexibility, independence

Workload: 100%

Starting date: 1.9.2022 or by agreement

The position is limited to 3 years, with an option to extend by one year.

Application deadline: 23. 6. 2022

Contact address: Please send your application (including a letter of motivation, CV, transcript of grades, and master's thesis) by email to the secretariat (Ms. Christine Soltermann): christine.soltermann@psy.unibe.ch

For content-related information, please contact Prof. Andreas Hirschi at andreas.hirschi@psy.unibe.ch.